

POL 250: Precept 02

I think that the overall quality of the precepts was:

POL 250: Precept 03

I think that the overall quality of the precepts was:

Precepts – Please comment on the quality of the precepts. How did they contribute to your learning in the course? To what extent did the preceptor raise challenging questions, help clarify course material, and encourage broad student participation? Was the preceptor responsive to students’ questions, opinions, and criticism?

POL 250: Precept 02

Comments
Precepts were well organized and helpful. I really appreciated the time spent in precepts going over homework problems.
Ben Hammond was only with us as preceptor for the first half of the course, but in that time he did an incredible job. He gave clear explanations and truly cared about his students.
Precepts were great. The preceptor was very engaging and receptive of student opinions.
I loved Ben’s precepts – he did a good job teaching what we need to know

POL 250: Precept 03

Comments

Both Ben and Julian were awesome preceptors! Couldn't speak more highly of them. Hope Ben is doing well in his time off!

Ben is a good preceptor who is willing to help us whenever we ask for it. His precept notes were helpful for revising, and he is generally good at explaining concepts.

Half of the semester was Ben, half was Julian. I'll start with Ben: Ben was amazing. I had a lot of trouble with pretty much every part of the class. Ben sat down with me, 1 on 1, willing to work through and teach the material to me at a slower pace in a way that I could understand. I was amazed at how well I understood his teachings, both in the 1 on 1s as well as in precept, in comparison to Meirowitz. I can't stress how much Ben helped me through my understanding of the material. Julian was also very good. I couldn't understand as well his style of teaching, but he was still much more understandable than in lecture. Mostly, he went a bit fast for me to understand, but I know I would have held up the rest of the class that did understand the material, so that is fine. He was great overall.

Hammond was awesome, though he left halfway through the semester, which was pretty sad.

Precepts were solid but again, slow. But Julian and Ben were very responsive and helpful to understand the course material.